“We often say that we are nothing. But we would be very sorry if anyone should take us at our word. We pretend to retire and hide ourselves, so that the world may run after us and seek us out. True humility does not make a show of herself or use many humble words; for she desires not only to conceal all other virtues, but most of all to conceal herself.”-- St. St. Frances de Sales (1567-1622)

THANK YOU!!!!

A big Thank you to all those who had given to help pay for the repairs to my truck which will be used as the normal parish vehicle. Just for your information, these are some of the repairs I have had to have done so far; Complete Exhaust System replacement, including pipes, muffler, converter ($800) and replace the Fuel injection System and some other structural repairs ($568.92). She is running fairly well and more reliable now, but there are some other repairs I will have done to her as time goes on. May God reward your generosity!

Consoling Thoughts of St. Francis de Sales
God Will Never Destroy a Soul Submissive to His Will

We deal with a Master who is rich in mercy to those who invoke Him; He forgives a debt of ten thousand talents on a small petition. We must have sentiments worthy of His goodness; we must serve Him with fear; but while we tremble, we must not cease to rejoice. The humility that discourages is not a good humility.

God loves us; He knows what we require better than we do ourselves. Whether we live or die we are the Lord's. To Him belong the keys of life and death; those who hope in Him shall never be confounded.

Let us not amuse ourselves so much with trifles; let us look only to His most holy will. Let this be our beautiful star; it will guide us to Jesus Christ, either in the crib or on Calvary. He who follows it will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of eternal life, which is not subject to death.

Although God is omnipotent and there is nothing impossible to Him, yet in His mercy He has bound Himself not to destroy for ever a soul whose will, at its exit from the body, is submissive to His will. As the tree falls, so it lies; and the soul will remain forever in that state in which it is found at the end of life: if rebellious to the will of God, its portion will be the chalice of the wicked, and in the lake of fire and brimstone; if submissive to His holy will, its salvation is unquestionable, though a delay may be made in purgatory, while some rust is burning away, since nothing defiled can enter heaven. So that, by unreservedly abandoning one's self into the arms of God during life and at death, there is nothing to fear; because, besides that His will ought to be our satisfaction, and He does not desire that any one should perish, but that all should come to salvation by penance, therefore it is that He will never send a soul submissive to His will into exterior darkness, which is prepared only for rebels to His light and to His love.
